

Advanced EMDR Training

EMDR and Play Therapy with Children and Families

This workshop is for clinicians who have completed at least the Basic level of the EMDR training.

This workshop will explore how and why combining the modalities of EMDR and Play Therapy can result in rapid and sustaining results. Linking these two highly effective modalities offers healing for children affected by trauma, decreasing maladaptive behaviors and increasing self-awareness and regulation. This combination can be used for work with children and their families to facilitate healing and attachment within the parent/child dyad.

This training will include lecture, videos and practice exercises. Participants will see multiple uses of EMDR and Play Therapy with various ages of children and families.

Learning Objectives: Participants will:

1. Identify 10 developmentally appropriate ways to implement the 8 stages of EMDR using Play Therapy techniques.
2. Practice 2, family- based, Play therapy techniques to use in the Preparation phase of EMDR with children. Including use of co-regulation skills for parents and children throughout using EMDR and Play Therapy.
3. Practice identifying Negative and Positive cognitions for child and family.
4. Identify 3 clinical considerations factors to consider when deciding to use a family approach to working with children with trauma using EMDR and Play Therapy.
5. Discuss the benefits and barriers to using a narrative therapeutic story with children and families for trauma healing and building attachment. Understand how the therapeutic story can assist with the Adaptive Information Processing (AIP).
6. Identify ways the therapeutic story can be used to; gain access, desensitize and reprocess trauma.
